

San Pedro Sula HONDURAS

Known as the industrial capital of Honduras, San Pedro Sula's population is estimated about one million. It is a dynamic and bustling city with a modern airport served by Delta, American, Continental and Taca airlines.*

Extraordinary attractions a short distance from the city include the Copan Mayan Ruins, beautiful beaches on the Caribbean, and the exotic Lake Yojoa in the mountains. You can reach one of the best coral reefs for scuba and snorkeling at Roatan and other Bay Islands in less than an hour by air.

San Pedro Sula has several universities within the city as well as modern private clinics and hospitals. The city has several movie theaters as well as a theater playhouse and various restaurants for all budgets. There are two soccer stadiums and two major soccer teams with a strong tradition of rivalry with other cities.

“Working at Our Little Roses has opened my eyes to a new world and allowed me to be part of some amazing lives.” Kate White, first grade teacher and, social worker.”

“Living and working in the OLR community is a challenging experience. It helped me appreciate different cultures and especially that which gives girls chances not possible outside this ministry” Kent Starkweather, third grade teacher.

Our Little Roses A Life Transforming Ministry

Our Little Roses Ministries or Ministerios Nuestras Pequeñas Rosas is a home working to transform the lives of girls with nowhere else to go.

This ministry for homeless girls began in 1988 in a small rented house with 26 girls and has since grown to encompass a two and a half acre compound housing more than 65 girls ages 3-20. OLR includes a transitional program for young adults from the home who are attending university.

There are not sufficient governmental social services or funds for Honduran children who become victims of violence, poverty, disease and oppression. This means children are often forced onto the streets to fend for themselves when their families cannot or will not care for them. Girls, because of their gender are often worse off than boys.

At OLR each girl receives unconditional love, good nutrition, health care and access to a good education and encouragement that they can accomplish anything they hope for in their lives.

OLR, over 19 years, developed several interrelated ministries within the larger community, thus serving not only the girls, but the surrounding neighborhoods.

Holy Family Bilingual School with pre-school grades through eighth draws children from the larger neighborhood and our OLR girls. Grades nine through eleven will be added a grade each year.

We need dedicated Christian teachers, care-givers and people with special talents to share their gifts.
